Strainers are devices used to filter out solid particles from a fluid stream. It consists of a perforated or mesh-lined basket or screen enclosed within a housing. The housing may be made of materials such as cast iron, carbon steel, stainless steel, or plastic, depending on the application and the type of fluid being filtered.

When fluid flows through the piping system, it enters the strainer housing, where the solid particles are captured by the screen or basket.

Industries in Nigeria enhance their fluid management systems with the standard strainers supplier and ensure the quality and reliability of filtration
